

WE ARE HIRING

SENIOR WORKPLACE DESIGNER

Studio, Fifteen George's Quay, Dublin 2

Our ambition is to create spaces where people thrive; modern, sustainable buildings that set the standard for how we work today.

Reporting to the Head of Development, the Senior Workplace Designer will work as a key member of the IPUT Development Team.

The role will lead the design and delivery of office fit out and workplace strategy projects across high quality commercial assets. This role combines strong architectural design capability with a deep understanding of modern workplace trends, occupier expectations and commercial delivery.

Key Responsibilities

Working with highly experienced Development, Asset Management and Sustainability teams, this role will shape the design vision and direction for our Studio brand, building receptions and amenities, and managing external consultants and contractors from concept through completion.

- Develop design concepts, space planning and interior strategies aligned with occupier needs
- Act as client side design lead, managing architects, co-ordinating consultants and working with contractors through the delivery of these projects

- Ensure fit outs meet quality, budget, programme and ESG objectives
- Key role in material and product selection, lighting, internal planting, staging and furniture selection
- Embed wellbeing, flexibility, sustainability and long term adaptability into office design
- Support leasing, branding and show suite design where required

Personal Profile

- Ideally the candidate will come with an architectural or design background and qualification

- 10+ years' experience in office, workplace or commercial interiors
- Strong portfolio of office fit out / workplace projects
- Experience working client side or with developers is highly desirable
- Confident communicator with a commercially aware, design led mindset
- Pro-active with strong analytical skills and attention to detail
- Proven experience working in fast paced environments
